Lightning Protection:

There are many ways in which lightning strikes can cause damage and serious consequences to electronic systems. Having a reliable lightning protection system will protect a facility's network computers, data communication network, building management system, PABX system, CCTV equipment, and more.

Uninterruptible Power Supply:

Depending on the requirement, Comspec recommends the appropriate UPS needed to provide back up power to critical equipment.

TVSS / Surge Protection:

Complementing with the lightning protection system, TVSS / Surge Protection is crucial to protecting equipment from excess voltage and current, which may cause interruption in operations and even injuries.

Power Distribution Unit:

As the last link in the power chain, this ensures delivery of critical power to the different loads.

Power Conditioner:

Complementing with surge protection, a power conditioner corrects voltage and waveform distortions and removes external electrical noise such as frequency and electromagnetic interference.

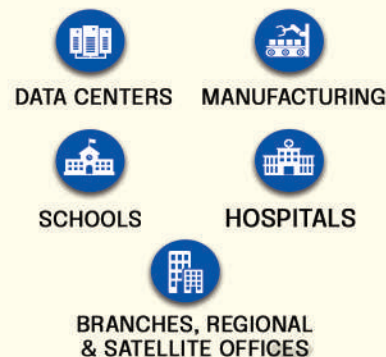

Groundings:

To ensure utmost safety for appliances and staff, proper grounding is a must.
